Good morning, Darren.

I hesitate to add to what must be copious fanmail, judging by the apparent response of our students! Thank you very much for responding to them so promptly and helpfully.

I have tried to gauge the success of your offering in order to decide whether or not we made a good decision to spend our 'orientation budget' in this way. There is no doubt that the overwhelming majority of the students gained very positively from the experience and parents have let us know that as well.

Be assured that you were very well received by the students and I'm specially grateful that you have honoured your promise of responding to their email cries for help. We are pleased that we decided to change our seminar arrangements this year and feel that you lived very well up to our expectations. Thank you very much.

Kind regards.
